FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Attorney's Son Follows in His Father's Footsteps

Local Father-Son Attorneys Devoted to Helping Others

COLORADO SPRINGS, Co., Nov. 14, 2007—The members of McDivitt Law Firm rely on family values as well as family members to continue the growth and success of the Colorado Springs-based organization. The father-son legal team of Mike and David McDivitt along with fellow attorneys Diane Craven, Sheila Toborg, and W. Clark Litten, comprise McDivitt Law Firm and dedicate themselves to fighting for the rights of their clients. The members of the firm also rely on the knowledge of Dr. Karen McDivitt, who is the firm's Business Manager as well as Mike's wife and David's mother.

In 1974, Mike McDivitt started a general law practice in his hometown of La Junta, Co., handling wills, trusts, divorces, land transactions, farmers' disputes, and other matters serving the needs of rural America. After 14 years, he decided to specialize in personal injury litigation and build his new practice in Colorado Springs with his wife and children. As a result, the firm has been an integral part of David McDivitt's life from an early age.

"I can remember when we opened our first office. I was in sixth grade, and I would accompany my parents to the old Pace Warehouse to purchase furniture for the office," David said. "I was the one responsible for assembling the furniture. Later, when I was in junior high, I hooked up the new computers at the office after school. I'm excited to finally be able to contribute to our firm as a lawyer and be on the frontlines, helping people who might otherwise not have a voice in the system."

David, who joined the firm this past August, graduated magna cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa from the University of Colorado with a Bachelor of Arts in economics and received his Juris Doctor in 2006 from the University of Colorado School of Law. During his tenure at law school, David served as an editor of the University of Colorado Law Review, and was winner of the Carrigan Cup Mock Trial Competition, the William O. DeSouchet Award for "Best Individual Performance in Trial Advocacy," and the Colorado Trial Lawyers Association award, and the Joel H. Greenstein Award for "Best Performance in Advanced Trial Advocacy."

Prior to joining McDivitt Law Firm, David worked as a Deputy State Public Defender for the state of Colorado, during which he was responsible for as many as 250 cases at any given time and was lead counsel on dozens of jury trials and hearings. Now, as an attorney at McDivitt Law Firm, he devotes 100 percent of his time to representing those injured in auto accidents, victims of drunk drivers, people harmed by defective products and machinery, and others who have been seriously injured due to negligence or willful misconduct.

“I know it sounds a bit biased, but I feel really fortunate to have someone possessing David’s caliber and trial experience joining our firm,” Mike McDivitt said. “He had a number of other opportunities offered to him, and I am honored that he chose to come onboard with us to ensure the future of McDivitt Law Firm. On top of that, I think it’s every father’s dream to be able to work with his son.”
